PRIVACY POLICY

OVERVIEW

We at Ingram Industries Inc. ("Ingram") take your privacy seriously and do not want to violate your trust. Our goal is to provide you with timely and useful information and not to bother you with unwanted advertisements or solicitations. We will never make your private information that you submit through this website available to anyone outside of Ingram for any purpose.

COLLECTION OF PERSONAL INFORMATION

As a general rule, you can visit the Ingram website without revealing any personal information about yourself (i.e. information that identifies you); however, certain parts of the website permit you to provide personal information to Ingram in order to request employment information or to otherwise communicate with Ingram by e-mail. Such personal information may include your name, e-mail address, mailing address, or telephone number. Ingram will not disclose or provide your personal information to unaffiliated third parties. Ingram uses due diligence to maintain and protect the confidentiality of the personal information submitted by the users of the Ingram website. Ingram does not permit its third party hosting vendor to disclose, provide, or sell any personal information relating to any user of the website to any third parties unaffiliated with Ingram. Although Ingram takes steps to protect your personal information, Ingram does not guarantee that such steps are adequate in all circumstances, and such steps are taken without any express or implied warranty of any kind. If you want your personally identifiable or other information removed from our database or files, please contact us at privacy@ingram.com and let us know.

RELATED WEBSITES AND PRIVACY POLICIES

If you visit the websites of our subsidiaries and/or affiliates, please review their specific Privacy Policies for how they handle the personally identifiable information you provide.

WHOM WE SHARE PRIVATE INFORMATION WITH

No one.

USE OF COOKIES

A cookie is a small collection of information about you stored by a website on your computer's hard drive. A cookie can contain only information you decide to supply; it does not search your computer for information. Cookies help you get around a website more easily. If you prefer not to receive cookies, you can set your browser to warn you before you accept a cookie and to refuse a cookie if a website attempts to put one on your hard drive. But, by refusing cookies, you may have trouble using a website that relies on cookies. The Ingram website uses only session cookies, which are destroyed when you close your browser. No permanent cookies remain on your hard drive.